Join Us in Tulsa for Homecoming

Coming home. That is what Homecoming is all about. I am so excited about the changes that have taken place at ORU in the past several years.

Much of my excitement stems from frequent visits to Tulsa and actually seeing the campus we all know and love. The buildings look great. The dorms are better than ever. But my real joy comes in seeing ORU students pursuing God, chasing their dreams with passion, and making huge plans for the future!

Fellow alumni, let this be my personal invitation for you to join me and other alumni at Homecoming 2012. There is still time to plan and prepare. So, meet me and our entire Alumni Association Board in Tulsa for an incredible event! Here are my top five reasons why you need to be at Homecoming 2012:

- The Banquet. The signature event of the weekend and a great time to see all of your friends.
- The Campus. Our iconic buildings and grounds have never looked better. You have to see them to believe the progress that has been made.
- The Chapel. Being in Christ's Chapel for an ORU chapel service is still an incredible experience for students and alumni.
- The Connection. Few places will provide inspiration, memories, and motivation as you find when you step foot back onto the campus where you "made no little plans."
- The Student Center. Officially known as the Armand Hammer Alumni-Student Center, it will be under construction when you get here!

While you are making your plans to join hundreds of your fellow alumni in Tulsa in February, I want to take this opportunity to encourage you to think about helping a student attend ORU so they too can experience a future ORU Homecoming as an alumnus. By now you should have heard about the annual Whole Person Scholarship program that helps ORU to recruit, attract, and retain many outstanding students. This program has a dollar-for-dollar matching component, but we need your help to reach the lofty goals set for this year.

As you will see on page 8, the Whole Person Scholarship gives deserving young people a chance to experience everything ORU has to offer. Your contribution may give a talented musician a chance to receive instruction and play a Steinway piano for the first time (page 11), provide an orator the opportunity to sharpen their skills through the newly established debate program (page 38), offer media students the chance to use state-of-the-art technology (page 14), or simply help future world-changers experience the beginning of their lifelong dreams at ORU.

Your Alumni Association Board met in Tulsa in October and we have some great new initiatives and programs to roll out in the coming year. They are all focused on reengaging with you, the incredible alumni of Oral Roberts University. Some of these programs will be discussed in Tulsa during Homecoming and others will begin just as soon as possible. In the meantime, if you have suggestions for how this Alumni Association Board can help you, please visit the ORU alumni Web site where you will find our contact information. Our mission as an Alumni Association is to know you, impact you, represent you, and inform you. Your Alumni Board is dedicated to seeing ORU succeed and making sure that you, the alumni, are a huge part of that success.

In closing, I am personally asking each one of you to pray for ORU, its administration, faculty, staff, and students. If you have not sown back into this great place, take a moment to give back to a place that gave so much to you. I look forward to seeing you at Homecoming 2012.

Coming home,

More Than a Coin Toss

Among the “trite and true” metaphors of all time is the saying, two sides of the same coin. So trite, in fact, that one hates to use it. It is the perfect metaphor, however, for scholarships for worthy students.

If there is a moment in which, as a university president, I thoroughly delight, it is seeing the joy on the face of a student who can be at ORU because of a scholarship. The gratitude, the radiance of a dream come true, the hope of new experiences at ORU and the excitement of knowing their life beyond ORU will touch the world . . . there is nothing to compare with seeing all that and more on the face of a scholarship winner. Here is a boy at ORU — call him Todd — pursuing his dream of an engineering degree. He told me, “Without the Whole Person Scholarship, I could never be here.”

Of course, there's another, darker side to that coin.

There is hardly a moment more painful than seeing the crestfallen who head home from a visit knowing they cannot come to the University of their dreams. Call her Lilly. She is from a broken home in a tiny town in the Rio Grande Valley.

Feeling trapped by her context, she dreamed of being at ORU. She came to a Whole Person Scholarship/ College Weekend, but we just couldn't award Lilly enough for her poor mother to possibly do the rest, and her wayward father refused to sign for a loan.

As she climbed in the car to head back to Texas, Lilly tried to put on a brave face. “I'll get a job. I'll start saving. Maybe next year.”

What made the difference for Todd? What might have made the difference for Lilly? It was the Whole Person Scholarship. I have never encountered a scholarship program so productive, so efficiently run, and so effective at finding and funding exactly the kind of students we want at ORU.

There is absolutely no greater return in the Kingdom of God than investing in human potential. Those who, with the generous help of others, are able to bathe in the ORU experience are not just learning math or theology. They are taking a giant step toward the destiny God has for them.

More than 65 percent of all students who compete for a Whole Person Scholarship actually enroll at ORU. That's huge! But it's not enough. It won't be enough until it's 100 percent. It won't be enough until I see that same joy on Lilly's face.

So again, what makes the difference for a Todd or Lilly? It's more than a coin toss. The difference-maker is you. For a return on investment that's eternal, for the joy of making a difference in a life that will make a difference, invest in the Whole Person Scholarship.

Your Servant at ORU,

MARK RUTLAND, PH.D.
PRESIDENT

Junius Johnson: Impacting the Ivy League

BY ANDREA GRAFF, CLASS OF 2012

Four master's degrees from Yale University and a Ph.D. from the same. A recently completed novel and a promising career as a professor at his alma mater.

At only 35 years of age, it's clear that if Junius Johnson is lacking in anything, it's not ambition. But though he has experienced great success, Johnson began his journey as many of us do, unsure of his life's course and uncertain of his abilities.

In 1995, the Louisville, Ky., native enrolled in Oral Roberts University with plans to pursue a bachelor's degree in theology/missions and to eventually become a missionary. This plan took a turn after Dr. Ron Meyers, a missions professor at ORU, encouraged Johnson to pursue his literary interests as well. Then, after Johnson graduated in three years with a major in English literature, Meyers urged his student to go on and obtain a master's degree. Johnson respected his professor's opinion, but he was hesitant to agree.

"That was a pretty big crisis in my sense of vocation. I thought of myself as a missionary," he said.

Finally, after intently seeking God through prayer, Johnson felt peace about Meyers' suggestion, which led to another important decision: where to attend graduate school. The answer came from an unexpected source.

While taking part in a summer program at the University of Notre Dame just before his senior year, Johnson had a teacher who encouraged him to consider attending Yale. At first, Johnson thought this suggestion was a joke.

"I thought he was making fun of me," he laughed. "When it became clear that he wasn't, I didn't really know how to respond. I never wanted to go to Yale because I never thought that I could."

Johnson knew Yale's program was intense and wondered if he could meet the demands of an Ivy League school. His concerns were allayed when Nicholas Wolterstorff, a professor of religion at Yale, arrived at Notre Dame to speak to the students about graduate school. Wolterstorff was impressed with Johnson, urged him to apply to the university, and upon parting, offered a piece of information that gave the doubting student hope.

"As I left he said, 'By the way, I'm the chair of the admissions committee this year,'" Johnson recalled. "It was then I thought, 'Wow, I could really go to Yale.'"

And he did. But Johnson didn't just attend Yale; he attended free of charge due to his excellent academic record. He was accepted into the school's elite theology doctoral program and completed it in 2010.

Dr. William Epperson, an ORU English professor who served as Johnson's advisor, is extremely proud of his former student's accomplishments. He feels Johnson is the epitome of the kind of graduate ORU strives to send out.

"Junius was one of the most intellectually curious, hardworking students I've had," he said. "He uses his mind to really enter the intellectual world, and he deals with aesthetics through the Christian intellectual tradition, working with people that have been the intellectual leaders in Christian philosophy and aesthetic philosophy."

In Epperson's opinion, Johnson's brilliance didn't affect the way he interacted with his classmates. He found a way to remain humble while still serving as an example of discipline and focus.

"He was comfortable with himself... When he talked to you it never seemed like he was trying to prove something," Epperson recalled. "Junius could just enter into a conversation with you, and you didn't get the feeling that he was trying to impress you."

Now, with his career in high gear, Johnson pays tribute to his days at Oral Roberts University for laying a remarkable foundation. Besides the "outstanding" faculty, he greatly valued the godly atmosphere and the opportunity to develop lifelong friendships.

"IT WAS THE ASSUMPTION ON CAMPUS THAT GOD WAS DOING GREAT THINGS, AND WE WERE ALL A PART OF IT. I APPRECIATED BEING WITH LIKE-MINDED PEOPLE WHO HAD THAT VISION, HELPED TO SHAPE THAT VISION IN ME, AND CONTINUE TO DO SO THROUGHOUT THE YEARS."

Johnson and his friends are still nourishing that sense of vision by keeping in touch, sending each other prayer requests by e-mail and taking time to pray for one another. But the young scholar found that similar opportunities for spiritually nourishing relationships were lacking when he arrived at his new home in New Haven, Conn.

"One of the challenges when you go away from ORU, and... as you get older, is you stop looking at every day of your life as if it's a really big deal. That's partly a youth thing... but I also think it's just us getting calloused," he said.

On a trip to St. Louis to visit his former ORU roommate, Joshua Berndt, Johnson and his wife, Rebekah, stopped by the Botanical Garden.

At Yale, Johnson viewed the overall lack of spiritual focus as a platform to witness to his friends and colleagues. He knew that in order to do so effectively, he had to speak their language, a charge to which he has now made a long-term commitment.

Today, he and his wife, Rebekah, continue to reside in Connecticut, where he teaches both Latin and theology at Yale. He still considers himself a missionary, only now he sees that his mission field isn't the streets of a foreign country; it's the classroom. He recognizes both the direct and the potential influence his position holds.

"We have the princes of countries, the future kings of foreign powers come here to study," Johnson pointed out. "You have future media leaders, Hollywood producers and directors, novelists, politicians, lawyers, judges, some of the most powerful people in the country . . . A successful ministry at one of those places would go a lot further to changing the entire culture than a successful ministry anywhere else would. If I make a difference in their lives and in what they believe, it's going to spread very quickly."

Besides teaching, Johnson also works with The Rivendell Institute, a prestigious Christian study center officially recognized by Yale. The institute's goal is to demonstrate to students through scholarship how the gospel helps to make the world a better place. They also hope to train Christians to be sophisticated as they engage in culture in order to make the gospel appealing to those around them.

"These students are going to be pastors and professors in very influential places," Johnson said. "They're going to be the top professors at the top schools to the next generation. And so we want to . . . make sure that they're very well trained at helping people understand that the gospel is good news."

As if his schedule wasn't hectic enough, Johnson has recently completed a novel and continues to play the French horn in his quintet, Brass. As a novelist his goal is to "get people to . . . believe that there's more to this life than what we see every day and what they dare to dream for themselves." He views his musical pursuits more as a hobby.

Long ago, Johnson said, he realized "how all these different pieces fit together. My academic gifts are meant for the world and for the church, but my musical gifts are meant largely for me, to keep me encouraged and to keep my spirits up . . . I see it primarily as a gift from God to me to help me deal with what is often a very rigorous profession."

When it comes to his future, Johnson has big plans. He wants to develop a Christian metaphysics, or philosophy of being, and write a systematic theology. His intention is to create an academically excellent composition that adequately represents his faith and the faith of his ORU classmates, while still being taken seriously by his fellow scholars — those he's determined to reach.

"I WANT TO RAISE THEIR EXPECTATIONS; I WANT TO RAISE THEIR HOPES. I WANT THEM TO LOOK FOR SOMETHING MORE IN THEIR LIVES. BECAUSE I BELIEVE IF THEY START LOOKING, THE HOLY SPIRIT WILL LEAD THEM," JOHNSON SAID.

With a firm commitment to the historical and evangelical faith coupled with the highest theology training possible, Johnson is confident he can reach these objectives successfully. Dr. William Epperson is just as sure.

"There's never been any doubt of Junius' brilliance. He has always had great plans, and I'm confident he can do what he wants to do," Epperson said.

‘Little Plans’? No Way

Whole Person Scholarship recipients are pursuing big dreams that will transform lives all over the world.

BY ANDREA GRAFF, CLASS OF 2012

“I don’t see ORU just like every other Christian college. I see it as a covenant University. This concept of being a whole person isn’t just about being whole for yourself or for your family, but it’s about being whole to make other people whole . . . it’s about thinking of another person and not only yourself.”

That’s what Favour Ikome had to say about Oral Roberts University’s vision of educating the whole person. As a sophomore from West Africa and a recipient of the Whole Person Scholarship, she believes the vision of the University is what sets it apart from other schools. And she’s not the only one.

ORU has spent 46 years building a positive reputation for the kind of students it turns out. The goal has always been to educate students who exemplify a whole-person lifestyle, who don’t just develop intellectually but also emotionally, spiritually, socially, and physically.

That’s why the Whole Person Scholarship program was started: to enroll students who already model this concept and help them become effective servant-leaders who can change the world.

Ikome has big plans for her future, and she believes that obtaining this scholarship will prove instrumental in seeing those plans come to pass.

Right: Growing up in Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Tomé struggled with his health. This influenced his decision to become a doctor.

“The Bible says that when you have a vision, you have to tell people who’ll run with that vision with you. God has specifically placed these people in my life who are helping that purpose come true,” she said.

The vision for Tino Velásquez García, a junior biology premed major from Comayagua, Honduras, is to return to his country to help establish and provide affordable and accessible healthcare. He also appreciates the distinctive purpose of the Whole Person Scholarship program.

“This is a unique award because it doesn’t just honor achievement in grades or test scores; it honors a person’s commitment and discipline to leading a good life. It’s good that that’s being encouraged,” he said.

Sophomore engineering major Arvin Sepehr agrees. He believes becoming a whole person is something everyone should seek to accomplish.

“Becoming a whole person is becoming the person God meant for you to be. It’s your purpose . . . it’s what life’s about. And I don’t think you can get that anywhere else,” he said.

These Whole Person Scholarship recipients say they greatly appreciate donors’ willingness to assist them and their fellow students in following God’s call to attend ORU. Freshman biology premed major Ricardo Tomé says he has faith that their investment will pay off.

Sepehr said, “I just knew I had to be at ORU, regardless of what happened” — whether or not he received the Whole Person Scholarship. “I didn’t apply anywhere else. I didn’t have any other plans.”

“It’s not just an amount you’re giving for right now — it’s a seed for the future. It’s a process, but you’re sowing into a great place where people are learning more of God. It’s not in vain,” he said.

Ikome says donors who support this program are opening doors for students that otherwise might have never been opened, and as a result are helping them to fulfill God’s purposes.

“The fact that they believe in us — that’s very encouraging, and it’s saving a lot of lives. They’re making people available for God to use them,” Ikome said.

ORU, STEINWAYS MAKE BEAUTIFUL

Music Together

BY ANDREA GRAFF, CLASS OF 2012

Last spring, Oral Roberts University became an All-Steinway School, a prestigious title given to institutions directly by Steinway and Sons. The University is one of about 125 schools worldwide and the only Charismatic/Pentecostal school in the nation recognized with the label. Others include Julliard, Eastman, and Oberlin.

The initiative to become All-Steinway began in 2009, a time during which Dr. Randall Guthrie, ORU professor and chair of the music department, says the designation was only a distant dream.

"We knew it was a possibility, but it looked so far away. There was a lot of uncertainty," he said.

Larry Dalton, a 1969 ORU graduate and Steinway Artist, was the driving force behind the Steinway Initiative. Weeks before his death in 2009, he and fellow music alumnus Larry Wayne Morbitt put on a benefit concert; $170,000 was raised through this event alone. Months later, ORU alumna Renae (Mayer) Bufogle and her husband, Joseph, made a large gift that enabled ORU to purchase a 9-foot Steinway grand piano. The remaining funds came from other alumni and friends, including the Green family.

In order to earn the All-Steinway title, at least 90 percent of all acoustic pianos owned by an institution must be Steinways or Steinway products. To date, ORU's music department owns 37 of these pianos.

In January, Joyce Bridgman, assistant professor of music and coordinator of keyboard studies, toured the Steinway plant near Queens, N.Y., where each instrument, taking nearly a year to create, is handcrafted to meet the high standards set by the company's founder, Henry Steinway. Bridgman says the process was remarkable to watch.

"Seeing the actual process of building a concert grand piano, from tree logs to concert hall, was truly incredible. I'm delighted that the music students have the greatest opportunity to develop their technique and artistry on some of the best pianos in the world," she said.

Bridgman believes that practicing and performing on these top-quality instruments will develop improved technique, tonal brilliance and resonance, shadings of sounds, varieties of touch and articulation, and refined pedaling, promoting overall excellence in each student's performance.

Junior piano performance major Julianne Lapidus agrees.

"Playing a Steinway is unlike playing any other piano because the sound is so much better. It's really going to make a difference," she said.

According to Dr. Wendy Shirk, dean of the College of Arts and Cultural Studies, Lapidus and other piano majors aren't the only students who'll benefit from this recognition.

"It's not just piano students it affects. It affects the entire mentality, feel, and culture of the department. It has already had a wonderful recruitment dividend," she said.

That dividend totaled 20 more freshman music majors last fall over the previous semester, bringing the number to 56, an amount greater than the school has seen in 20 years.

On the heels of a successful campaign, Shirk hopes the same support will be present throughout phase two of the initiative. This phase calls for raising $70,000, with $40,000 of the funds going to update the digital piano lab to include 13 Steinway products.

The residual $30,000 will be used for the purchase of Larry Dalton's personal piano, a 9-foot concert grand piano that now sits in the lobby of Timko-Barton Hall. Proceeds from the Larry Dalton Memorial Concert, held on Oct. 28, went toward this purchase.

Business As Unusual

The ONEOK Executive Boardroom will accommodate plenty of potential investors when ORU seniors pitch their business ideas.

Thanks to a $500,500 grant from Tulsa-based ONEOK, Oral Roberts University now has a high-tech boardroom to support the Shark Tank senior project within the College of Business.

About half of the grant went into building the ONEOK Executive Boardroom on the third floor of the Graduate Center. The remaining funds will support the Shark Tank over the next four years.

“Supporting state and local-area higher education institutions, such as Oral Roberts University, is something we believe is important as we seek to attract and retain the talent we need to be successful today and in the future,” said John W. Gibson, ONEOK chairman, president, and chief executive officer. “We are proud to support the ORU College of Business Shark Tank program, a unique hands-on learning experience that allows students to apply what they have learned in the classroom to a real-world business plan.”

The boardroom serves as a teaching lab for the College of Business and as the host environment of the Shark Tank, a program that gives students the opportunity to pitch business and project ideas to investors during their senior paper project. If the students convince the investors their projects are worthy of support, funds are provided to bring the projects to life.

Breaking News! Studio Gets Makeover

It would not be inaccurate to say that the old Studio 1 on LRC 1 — the studio that Oral Roberts himself once used — looks like a million dollars.

With funds from the Green family's $10 million campus renovations gift and some savvy purchasing by Media Facilities Director Roger Bush, Oral Roberts University spent about $750,000 to upgrade the studio. A timely donation by KJRH 2 Works for You, Tulsa's NBC affiliate, added to the studio's value. As they were updating their own studio, KJRH leadership offered to give ORU their old news set, valued at $250,000.

Design/Video, Multimedia Production, and Convergence Media students, who learn by producing newscasts, will use this set. Newscasts are distributed on campus cable television and as streaming media through the ORU Oracle Web site.

This is the video control room, or the "brains" of the studio. It houses the four HD camera controls, the 4-channel Mira server with 18 terabytes of storage, patch bays, and more.

Lounge Renamed to Honor Alumnus

The Oral Roberts University Veterans Lounge, opened in March 2011, underwent a name change in November to honor the memory of Capt. Ryan Iannelli.

The new name of the LRC second-floor lounge is the Iannelli Memorial Veterans Lounge.

Iannelli was a 2006 ORU graduate and four-year member of the baseball team. After graduation, the New Jersey native joined the Marines. He died in Afghanistan in September 2011 in a helicopter crash. He was 27.

ORU has established a Veterans Organization and has been designated as a "Military-Friendly School" by G.I. Jobs, the premier magazine for military personnel transitioning into civilian life.

A Race to the Finish

For the second year in a row, the Tulsa Run featured an ORU Alumni team. Sixteen individuals were on the team, competing in the 15K or the 5K.

A few highlights:

- The 2011 team was several members stronger than the 2010 team.
- There were two top-100 runners in the 15K: Burt McLachlan (33rd) and Dominic Halsmer (94th).
- Paula Lee came in fourteenth in her age group in the 5K.
- Suzanne Behr placed twentieth in her age group in the 15K (with 151 finishers).
- The ORU Alumni team ranked tenth in the 15K out of twenty official, open teams.

"Most importantly," said Jesse Pisors, senior director of Development and Alumni Relations, "we all ran! We did our best, strengthened our bodies, and by doing so, prepared to better serve the Lord with our lives. Congratulations to everyone!"

Open to Debate

BY DEBBIE (TITUS-77) GEORGE

Dr. Agena Farmer had confidence that someday, God would bring Oral Roberts University's dead debate program back to life. In preparation, she created a document that spelled out what it would cost to get the program up and running. Then, she waited — about 20 years.

The big day finally came in 2011. Two 1984 business graduates, Steve and Susan (Grenseman) Jackson, provided a gift that left ORU plenty of room for debate.

Farmer, an assistant professor in the communication, arts, and media department, said she is thrilled that students from a variety of majors now have the opportunity to strengthen their speaking skills.

As Christians, "We need to be known as great thinkers instead of emotional people that talk and don't know what we're talking about," Farmer said. "I always tell my Argumentation and Persuasion class that I want 'thinking Christian' to be correct and not an oxymoron."

Last fall, ORU began offering a debate class and assembled a debate squad that has already achieved high finishes in several competitions.

The Jacksons became interested in debate when their oldest child, Joseph, got involved in it as a home-schooled high schooler.

“We saw the potential for fabulous Christian leadership to come out of that whole area,” Susan said, “and we felt ORU needed to tap into these kids that were skilled in their communication and thought process, in being able to verbalize a stand for what they believed and why they believed it. The training that our own son got was so beneficial.”

Joseph decided to enroll at ORU last August before he knew there was going to be a debate program. As a member of the debate squad, he is already making his mark; he won “Best Novice Speaker” and other awards at two fall tournaments.

Grateful for their own ORU experience, the Jacksons have kept up with what has been happening on campus in the years since their graduation.

They said they were impressed to become even more involved after meeting Board Chair Mart Green and his wife, Diana, at a 2008 ORU dinner near their farm in California.

“We were so blessed and so amazed to see how God had brought someone with that heart into the University to sow money, and not only that but their vision for where they’d like to see the school go,” said Steve, who also has a law degree from Southern Methodist University. He and Susan hope other alumni will take note of the metamorphosis that ORU has undergone since 2008 — triggered by the Green family’s initial gift and the installation of new leaders — and do whatever they can to keep the momentum going.

As Susan said, “When you plant a gift or a seed in here, it’s something that is going to be for eternity; it’s going to be forever.”

“For a long time,” Steve said, “I think alumni were concerned about where the money was going to go. But like I said — we met the Greens and thought, wow, this is a complete change of focus. I had tremendous confidence in seeing what they wanted to do with the University and how they were going to steward it.

“We can’t sit around and let one family” — namely, the Greens — “make all these gifts without us as alumni stepping up. As a group, we all can make a huge difference.”

Farmer believes in setting a high bar for ORU’s debate squads. “I want the students to learn, to expand their thinking, to be wise, to do all of those things. But I am not one of those ‘Get what you can out of it’ and ‘Oh, well, we didn’t win, but this is okay’ people. I really like to win! . . . I’m thinking that winning debate rounds is a really excellent way to show others the quality of our university and what we’ve done.”

ORU Prepares to Go Under Microscope

With apologies to the Apostle Paul, “And now these three remain: leadership, governance, and finance.”

Among the improvements sure to catch the attention of the HLC site team are the iPads that all faculty members received last fall. Here, Dr. Cal Easterling, Dr. Ken Weed, and Andrea Walker try out the new tool, along with Dr. Hal Reed (standing), Dr. Mark Hall (in orange), and Sonny Branham (foreground). Hall says the iPad “is versatile, convenient, and easily transportable. It makes taking attendance a snap, helps organize presentations for lecture quickly and efficiently, and makes accessing e-mail and Internet a breeze. The new technology benefits both faculty and students in the continued pursuit of truth and knowledge by equipping the classroom and supporting research.”

In the eyes of the Higher Learning Commission, those were Oral Roberts University’s biggest issues during the last comprehensive accreditation visit in November 2007. And although ORU has experienced a miraculous turnaround in all three areas — and reported the same to the HLC in a 2009 progress report — leadership, governance, and finance will still come under scrutiny when the HLC visits this October.

Specifically, the HLC will focus on matters such as:

- how the switch from a Board of Regents to a Board of Trustees has been handled;

- the effectiveness of ORU president Dr. Mark Rutland;
- the commitment to a “culture of transparency”; and
- the deficit reduction plan and deferred maintenance program.

Dr. Ken Weed, ORU’s self-study coordinator, believes the site team will see the best of “something old, something new” here at ORU.

“In response to the HLC, and with the strong support of alumni, friends, students, and especially the Board of Trustees, ORU has dramatically transformed into a noisy community full of new ideas, vitality, and hope for the future,” he says. And yet, “The 2012 report reflects the overwhelming volume of support from each of these vocal groups to preserve and maintain ORU’s founding vision. The ability to navigate such dramatic institutional change without the loss of core values demonstrates once again that this truly may be ‘God’s University.’”

Five subcommittees composed of faculty and staff members have been working on the self-study report since early 2010 in preparation for the HLC’s Oct. 8-10 visit. Weed says, “The full report will be publicly available on the ORU Web site during the summer for alumni comment, which will be included in the reporting.” He added that several chapters of the report include data from the alumni survey collected over the summer and fall of 2011.

ABET, Inc. Comes to Call

The Oral Roberts University engineering major, with concentrations in computer, electrical, and mechanical engineering, was evaluated by an ABET, Inc. site team in October.

According to Dr. John Matsson, the department chair, “The visit went well. They had positive things to say about the Whole Person Assessment system that we have in place at ORU. Furthermore, they were impressed by our students, alumni, faculty, advisory board, computer labs, and our new engineering lab.”

The new lab has been a work in progress for several months and was scheduled for completion in late 2011.

The site team had recommendations for ORU in three areas: educational objectives, curriculum, and facilities. Matsson said these concerns are being addressed.

ORU will receive notification of its accreditation status from ABET, Inc. in August 2012. The engineering program has been accredited by ABET, Inc. since 1993.

ORU Begins Planning for Its Next Presidential Transition

At his traditional post-trustees meeting forum with faculty and staff last September, Dr. Mark Rutland announced that he would be stepping down as president of Oral Roberts University sometime in 2013.

To ensure a smooth transition, the Board of Trustees has commissioned its Leadership Committee to set in motion a long-term succession plan for the Office of the President.

"After more than 30 years leading organizations, I feel it will be time in the next year or two to transition from day-to-day executive leadership into a new phase in my career," said Rutland, who is 64. "I am eager to work with the board to make this process as effective as possible for the long-term benefit of the University."

"We knew when Dr. Rutland came that he would not be here ten, fifteen, twenty years," said Board Chair Mart Green. "He's been an incredible transition president. That's what he's good at; that's what he came for. And now we'll be looking for what I would call a growth president, somebody who can be here long-term. I believe God will send us a leader who will take us through that growth stage."

Rutland has said he intends to stay involved with ORU after leaving office.

"He's done an incredible job at ORU," Green said. "We're proud of what he's accomplished and we're excited to have him involved in the future of ORU, certainly in a different role."

Along with developing a succession plan for the president's office, the board will be looking at succession plans for all of ORU's executive officers.

Thank You!

On behalf of the Oral Roberts University student body, thank you for taking part in the Armand Hammer Alumni-Student Center project.

The fundraising campaign, chaired by Michael and Jacquie Cardone and conducted between May 1 and Sept. 30, 2011, raised $1,140,184.23 in gifts and pledges from alumni and friends. Added to other seed gifts, ORU will have a budget of $11,363,059.59 for this new building.

Groundbreaking was scheduled for Jan. 25, 2012. All alumni are invited to the Construction Kick-off Celebration that will be held during Homecoming weekend on Friday, Feb. 10 at 12:15 p.m.

We can't say it enough: We DEEPLY appreciate your support for this much-needed and much-longed-for Alumni-Student Center. The projected opening date is January 2013.

Mills Works to Rebuild ORU Image

As Executive VP for University Advancement

It's been a homecoming of an extraordinary nature for Ossie Mills. The alumnus who became a television director for the Oral Roberts Evangelistic Association even before he graduated from Oral Roberts University in 1983 has returned to his alma mater with a unique and compelling mission.

"I'm a missionary kid, and I treasure my years of exposure to ministry, watching my parent at work in the field throughout the West Indies," Mills said. "Even from an early age, my heart has always been to advance the cause of the kingdom."

What started at ORU for Mills led to a long and distinguished career in communications, relationship marketing, television production, and executive leadership for major global organizations including World Evangelism, BelmontMills Entertainment, and The Inspiration Networks.

Now, Mills is the executive vice president for Advancement at ORU, appointed in September by President Mark Rutland.

"I never dreamed that I would be here serving at the place where my call began," Mills said, "but I am deeply humbled and honored and equally challenged by the role I've been called to."

The Division of University Advancement was largely designed by Mills after serving as a consultant to the University and undertaking a months-long study of the administrative, development, and communications operations. "It was a real gift," Mills said, "to be able to conduct in-depth interviews with faculty, staff, and students. People got really transparent with me and spoke from the depths of their hearts with passion and candor. They told me what this school means to them, how they lived for the student successes and, yes, I heard about the struggles of the past. Maybe most importantly, I heard words of hope, hope for the future of ORU, the quality of its educational offerings and its outreach for God's kingdom."

Significantly, University Advancement represents the comprehensive integration and management of what were formerly separate responsibilities for fundraising development, alumni relations, marketing communications, brand development, and leadership of the University's media operations. "While these areas are distinct, they embrace several common goals," Mills explained. "Under one covering, we'll be able to speak clearly with one message at the proper time, reduce the duplication of effort, and advance the University's mission from the campus to the world."

Mills describes his role as a catalyst for helping to reshape ORU, secure funding streams, reconstitute its brand, unify how the University is perceived by a broad population of stakeholders, and return it to the foundational principles upon which it was built and grew to become a giant educational strength, particularly among the nation's faith community.

So much of Mills' inspiration for his new administrative role taps into fond recollections of his undergraduate experience at ORU. "My first day on campus fresh from Kingston, Jamaica, Dr. Roberts addressed the incoming class. He said, 'If the money you have in your pocket does not pay your tuition, then it is your seed.' It was my first lesson in seedtime and harvest, a lesson that has served me well throughout my life. Giving into the kingdom — your time, your talent, and your treasure — is your greatest response of thanks to God for His love and eternal provision in your life.

"I'm thrilled to return to ORU now, to be working side by side with many of the finest in the field of education, and to be in a position to give back more of what my education here blessed me with."

Mills quotes freely from the mandate he memorized as a student. "It's a prayer that I share," he said, "and it stands for a promise to this community that I intend to keep. Prophetically our founder prayed, 'Raise up your students to hear My voice, to go where My light is seen dim, My voice is heard small, and My healing power is not known, even to the uttermost bounds of the earth.' And to that I add a bold 'Amen!'"

NU Chancellor Argue 'Gives His Best' to ORU

BY ANDREA GRAFF, CLASS OF 2012

Several decades ago, Dr. Don H. Argue, current chancellor of Northwest University and ORU Board of Trustees member, was called to Tulsa to meet with Oral Roberts. It was a "very difficult time for ORU," Argue said, and Roberts wanted his advice. Though Argue was a university president himself, he was unsure of his ability to help. Still, Roberts had one request: that Argue "come to Tulsa and give his best." So he did.

The week after he returned home to North Central University, Argue received a handwritten note from Roberts thanking him for his service. Enclosed was a check to NCU for $10,000, a large gift at that point in time. In the note, Roberts also said, "Out of our need, I am sending this seed gift for the ministries of North Central University."

Argue's immediate response was, "This man is the real deal. He practices what he preaches."

When it comes to understanding what it takes to lead large institutions and organizations, Argue is also the real deal. He served as the president of North Central University in Minneapolis, Minn., for 16 years and of Northwest University in Kirkland, Wash., for 9 years. Before becoming the chancellor of Northwest University, he was the president of the National Association of Evangelicals. NAE represents 55 denominations and 42,000 churches.

In 2007, then-Senator Hillary Clinton nominated Argue to serve on the U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom. His confirmation by the U.S. Senate was in June 2007. USCIRF is an independent non-political and non-partisan federal agency that monitors violations of the right to freedom of thought, conscience, and religion abroad. The commission advises the President and Congress and also releases an annual report presenting Countries of Particular Concern and Watch List Countries.

Argue believes that all of his past professional experiences prepared him to continue fulfilling Oral Roberts' initial request for him to "give his best" to the University.

"My experience presents an international worldview very important to ORU. Sometimes as Christians we talk too much to ourselves. We need to broaden our base," he said.

In Argue's opinion, ORU has taken great strides within the last few years. And as a member of the new Board of Trustees that was installed in January 2008, he is among those who have played a significant role in infusing the campus with new energy. One of his tasks was serving on the nominating committee that selected ORU's current president, Dr. Mark Rutland.

Argue believes the University truly lives up to its title of "the New ORU," with new buildings, restorations, and most important of all, a new spirit. He feels the changes are "thrilling" and looks forward to seeing even more progress, including a greater strengthening of all departments and majors, an expansion of the library, increased quality of the residence halls, and eventually, the addition of several doctoral programs.

"I believe in ORU," he said. "Its future will only be limited by our vision."

Joy to the World! No Debt Incurred This Christmas

The subject line of the Dec. 21 e-mail read "Early Christmas present" . . . and so it was. The news from the Office of the President gave every member of the ORU community good reason to rejoice. Another milestone had been reached — well ahead of schedule — and the sacrifices of the past year had paid off (no pun intended).

Dear Faculty & Staff,

Happy Christmas! Let me make it an even happier Christmas. I have very important and delightful news for you. The following announcement should brighten everyone's Christmas.

We have made it entirely through the fall semester without incurring one penny of debt on our line of credit. About Thanksgiving I was very hopeful that this was possible but I wanted to wait until I actually had the final word from Accounting. Declaring victory too soon has made more than one leader look ridiculous. By God's grace and some very strict management IT IS DONE! This was not accomplished without some pain but everyone cooperated. Now we can celebrate. And we should celebrate. This is a great accomplishment. By the way, you may know that I told the board that I thought we could get to this place within four years. We are there after only two and a half! Praise God.

Joyce Myscofski, who has worked in ORU's Treasury Department since 1988, said that in her 23 years this is the first time that ORU has been able to get through the fall semester without borrowing a dime to make it to the spring semester. Now obviously we must still climb the hill of the summer Line Of Credit. That will be a bigger nut to crack, but you will recall we made a huge dent in it this past summer. This will give us another huge step forward toward that ultimate goal of getting through the summer without going to the line of credit.

For now, let's rejoice in this great news. And perhaps pause a moment and give God thanks. I just knew you would want to hear this. What a great way to start the Christmas season. This is a milestone.

Rejoice in the Lord!

Your Servant at ORU,
Mark Rutland

ORU Athletics Gets Ready to Move to a New Conference

Steven Roundtree and his ORU teammates will see their rivalry with Oakland (Mich.) come to an end when the Golden Eagles begin competing in the Southland Conference.

Beginning next fall, a “White Out” in men’s basketball won’t mean a harrowing bus ride through a blizzard in North or South Dakota.

Oral Roberts University announced in October that it will leave the Summit League and join the Southland Conference, effective July 1, with competition to begin in all applicable sports for the 2012-13 academic year.

With this move from the mostly northern Summit League to the mostly southern Southland Conference, ORU will save money on travel and should experience fewer weather-related headaches.

“This is a good decision for us,” said ORU President Mark Rutland at the Oct. 25 press conference. “It’s a great decision for our student-athletes. We believe we will be a competitive partner in a great conference.”

“It’s going to be an outstanding fit, not only in recruiting for Athletics, but in recruiting for the University,” said Athletics Director Mike Carter. “We believe this decision is in the best interests of our student-athletes and the University as a whole.”

Southland Commissioner Tom Burnett said the conference’s presidents, in evaluating future members, were “not just adding schools for the sake of adding schools; we wanted to add value to our conference. We considered athletic and academic performance, facilities, geographic fit, and media market size. ORU, we saw very early, excelled in all these categories, and it was very evident this was where the value was.”

With the addition of ORU, Southland Conference membership will include ten teams: Central Arkansas, Stephen F. Austin, Sam Houston State, Lamar, Texas A&M Corpus Christi, Northwestern State (La.), McNeese State, Southeastern Louisiana, and Nicholls State.

ORU has been a member of the Summit League since the 1997-98 academic year.

REASONS TO CHOOSE ORU

The fact is that where they spend the next 4-plus years of their lives is a big deal, and it takes a lot of prayer and thoughtful consideration to make the right decision. That's why we conducted an informal survey of students from across the school and compiled a list for your student, from ours, of the top 11 reasons to add ORU to your college list.

1. IT'S EASY TO GET INVOLVED. From campus outreaches to leadership opportunities to departmental clubs and organizations, we've got a place for you.
2. ACADEMICS. Still undecided on a major? With more than 60 majors to choose from, you'll have no trouble finding your niche.
3. THE SPIRITUAL ENVIRONMENT. Biweekly chapel services, international mission trips, and opportunities to get involved in local churches are major advantages of attending ORU.
4. SPORTS! Paint your face, throw on your blue and gold, and cheer on the Golden Eagles!
5. PROFESSORS WHO CARE.
6. CURFEW! (OK, so it didn't really rank. But we knew the parents would get excited about this one.)
7. DIVERSITY. Since its start in 1965, ORU has brought in students from every state and 135 countries around the world.
8. IT'S IN TULSA! Tulsa is a great midsize city, filled with college kids and cool places to hang out. Whether you'd like to watch a Drillers baseball game, check out a play at the Performing Arts Center, or take in a concert at the BOK Center, there's always something fun going on.
9. INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL AND SOCCER: Perfectly good excuses to knock people over.
10. RELATIONSHIPS. This is the big one. Just ask a student, and they'll tell you. You simply can't beat the quality of relationships formed at ORU.
11. THE ARMAND HAMMER ALUMNI-STUDENT CENTER. We're breaking ground on this gorgeous new building in January 2012 and will celebrate the grand opening in 2013.

Now that you've heard from our students, they'd love to meet yours! Just send your child to an upcoming College Weekend, either in the spring (March 1-3) or in the fall of 2012. During these fun-filled couple of days, they'll stay in the dorms with current students, get to know other prospective students, and speak with professors in their area of interest.

We look forward to seeing you soon!

Homecoming 2012 is nearly here, and we're preparing for one of our greatest celebrations yet. Set for Feb. 10-11, this gathering will be packed full of fun events, including reunions, luncheons, conferences, games, and much more.

This year's theme is "It's where you belong," because, well, that's what we believe. With all of the positive change taking place at ORU, this is the perfect opportunity for you to experience it firsthand. Plus, you'll get to visit with old friends, cheer on the Golden Eagles, and catch a glimpse of the future vision for your university.

If you arrive on Thursday the 9th, you can get a jump on the weekend by attending the ORU VS. IUPUI men's basketball game. COLLEGE OF EDUCATION alumni will definitely get an early start, since they have an 8 a.m. PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT event on the 10th. Three hours later, the Class of '81's STEPHEN MANSFIELD will speak in CHAPEL. And then, right after chapel, we have a special treat: a CONSTRUCTION KICK-OFF CELEBRATION at the future site of the Armand Hammer Alumni-Student Center.

Friday's College of Education event and Construction Kick-off are just two of this year's new additions. On Saturday, we're holding an ORU KIDS' OLYMPICS at the Aerobics Center between 1 and 4 p.m., which will be open to all kids ages 4-15. And at 2:30 p.m., there's a special MISSIONS ALUMNI REUNION.

Another new event we're especially excited about is FRIDAY-NIGHT VES-PERS in Christ's Chapel! The Class of '75's Larry Stockstill will lead this 8:30 p.m. service, and there will be plenty of special music from multiple generations of alumni. It'll be worship the way we did it in the '70s and '80s. Then, of course, we'll be hosting class reunions. If this is your 10-, 20-, 30-, or 40-year reunion, we've got a special dinner planned for you and your class.

Please note that all alumni who attended ORU between 1965 and 1972 are invited to the 40-PLUS CLASS RE-UNION whose theme is "REMEMBER THE TITANS?" And in addition to the Friday-night dinner, there are plans to do a lunch at Goldie's, a tour of the "new" ORU, and individual class gatherings. Check out the Facebook group "You Know You Went to ORU Between 1965-1972" or contact Paul Palmer at paulpalmer@gmail.com for further details.

The WOMEN'S LUNCHEON with Pastor Sharon Daugherty, teas, open houses, receptions, a tailgate party (preceding women's basketball vs. Western Illinois), dinners for Legal Professionals and Health Professionals, advisory board meetings, . . . oh, and don't forget the ALUMNI HOME-COMING BANQUET, featuring the ALUMNUS OF THE YEAR AWARDS, on Saturday at 4:30 p.m.

Finally, you'll want to put on your ORU gear and join us at the Mabee Center for the MEN'S HOMECOMING BASKETBALL GAME as the Golden Eagles take on Western Illinois at 7:05 p.m. And be sure to stay for the POST-GAME ALUMNI RECEPTION on the Mabee Center court. Homecoming 2012 is where you belong, so make plans to be here! (For a full schedule of events, go to alumni.oru.edu.)

NOTES FROM ALUMNI*1970s

L. CHRISTINA (NYSTROM) SJOSTEDT 71 has completed her law studies and will be working in "Life Stewardship - Christians for Animals and Nature" and writing a book.

JANE WEBER BRUBAKER 76 has a story to tell, a "prodigal daughter/son" kind of story of how she and her husband, John, came together years after their first meeting in junior high school. Read the story here: http://articles.courant.com/2010-01-24/features/hc-lovestory0124.artjan24\_1\_million-bucks-talked-yale-university.

JEANIE (DONER-77) LAWSON is the outreach coordinator for Saint Joseph Rural Outreach Program in Lexington, Ky. She wrote to tell us how she arrived there. "I came to Kentucky with my roommate, MARTHA MEYER, in '77 to Red Bud Mission. She taught music and we both worked for Red Bud. I married a coal miner and remained in Kentucky as a social worker. Little did I know that my four years at ORU would lead me down this road. I feel so blessed." You can read a wonderful story about Jeanie's work with the Appalachian Outreach on this site: <http://news.sjflex.org/common-thread-spring-2011/>. Jeanie added that her twin brother, STEVE 77, is an elementary teacher in Colorado. Jeanie would love to hear from fellow '77 classmates.

DEBBIE CHURCH (GILSTRAP) WALSH 77 is in her fourth year as the U.S. director of prison ministry with Child Evangelism Fellowship, addressing the prevalent issue of intergenerational incarceration. This follows seven years working with Prison Fellowship. "When I used to hear President Roberts say that God told him to raise up students to 'take the gospel where My light is seen dim, and My voice is heard small,' I wondered what that meant for me," Debbie said. "Prison is a dark place, but we meet God there." In 2010, Debbie and her husband, Dennis, sponsored the publication of Man from Macedonia, the memoir of Rev. Aaron Johnson (manfrommacedonia.org). When they are not in prisons, Dennis and Debbie can be found at their home in Greensboro, N.C. "We love to hear from friends, and we love to have company." The Walshes have two adult daughters, Julie and Jennifer.

DENISE (DUKE) WESTFALL 79 was honored in September 2011 for her work at Kirk of the Hills Presbyterian Church in Tulsa. She was named an Honorary Life Member of Presbyterian Women of the Kirk (PWOK). This is an award that PWOK has been presenting since 1987; Denise's mom, Norma Duke, received it in 2008. Denise has spent more than 16 years teaching children about the Bible at the Kirk, through programs that she introduced (Bible Drill, Bible Blast, and Quiz Kids). She has chaired the Mother-Daughter Banquet, provided humor at Women's Retreats, gone on missions trips, and served PWOK as circle chairwoman, Bible study leader, historian, and president. Best of all (and unrelated to the award), she is the daughter of legendary ORU tennis coach Bernis Duke.

There is a 3-year diploma school followed by a 3-year degree school. The Nigeria Universities Commission recently visited the school on an accreditation inspection. One area they faulted them on, said Okpara, was their library holdings — only 9,000 volumes. "We need help — about 4,000 to 5,000 volumes to meet the required standard," he said. You can contact Okpara. He and Grace have three children: Favour, Chika, and Mordecai. ## ASSOCIATES

"PAUL" SUNG RO LEE (1990-92) sent us this e-mail last summer: "Many years have passed since I left ORU. However, it was during those two-and-a-half years when I was a part of the ORU student body that the Lord laid a foundation for my ministry of Africa missions. After many twists and turns of the past 15 years, the Lord has blessed our work to grow to over 200 plants of new churches and Bible training centers covering now eight African countries. Besides, I'm still building on what ORU has academically built in me during my college years, and am currently in pursuit of a Ph.D. through Oxford Graduate School. I wish to especially thank the ORU student body who lately gave sacrificial offerings for a missions project towards fencing expense of our Bible school in Lilongwe, Malawi. I could sense that ORU's 'missionary spirit' is still alive and well. The construction work has already begun and should see its completion by October 2011. Much blessings and thanks indeed!" Paul and his wife, Eunice, live in Nairobi, Kenya, with their sons, Timothy, 11, and Titus, 7.
